ECOSYSTEM FOR INNOVATION, IKS AND TRANSFER OF KNOWLEDGE

All the departments prepare reports on the extent Indian Knowledge System (IKS) in transacting the curriculum. The College organizes workshops for teachers on how to integrate IKS in curriculum delivery.

The College has also established an Incubation Centre to promote Entrepreneurship among the students. As the locality in which the College is situated is famous for Tourism, Tea, and Flora and Fauna; students are encouraged to create contents that they can monetize. Several students of the College have opened their Youtube channels after attending the sessions. They mostly create contents on local cuisine, culture and palces of tourist interests. Some studnts have also created content for engaging youth in games and activities to ward of frustration and depression. Several students in the College have successfully monetized their endeavours and have already started to have substantial income.

Dr. Satyam Tamang, Faculty of the Botany Department has successfully cultured the tissues of several rare and endangered orchids of the region and transferred the knowledge to a few nurseries of the region. This has resulted in not only saving some of the endangered Orchid species but also has given opportunities for earning revenue to local entrepreneurs.
